Definition: Service learning is an academic pedagogical model that integrates action linked to relevant community service and structured reflection so that each reinforces the other. The academic study may be in any discipline. The service may address a variety of community needs.

Minimum criteria for designation of service learning courses:

- i. The course involves students in service activities or projects with external communities that are responsive to community needs. Students who choose the CSL option must complete at least 20 hours per academic term of direct academically relevant community service.
- ii. The course includes academic topics that directly address questions related to the activities of the students.
- iii. The course requires student reflection on the interrelationships between course content, concepts, and objectives and community-based learning activities.
